WILLIAMSPORT

WILLIAMSPORT was incorporated as a borough March 1, 1806, and as a city by act of the Legislature in 1866. The plot of the city is irregular in shape. It is nearly eight miles long from East to West and averages about one mile in width. It is beautifully situated in a narrow valley with the river and mountains in the foreground and hills in the rear. The surrounding scenery is lovely in summer time and when the foliage turns in Autumn it presents a picture of beauty that is rarely excelled. Opposite the city a wild, narrow canyon enters the mountain, through which a limpid stream of water flows. A splendid road passes through the gorge. Three miles below the city the ascent of the mountain is made and as the road turns to descend into another valley, the point is reached from which is beheld one of the magnificent views which have helped to make Williamsport famous. A landscape of great beauty breaks upon the view and spread out like a great map, dotted with hamlets and farm buildings, lies the rich and highly cultivated valley. Hundreds drive to this and similar spots daily in summer time and linger until the shadows of evening creep up the valley, to gaze upon this magnificent panorama of nature as it slowly fades away.

LYCOMING COUNTY

LYCOMING COUNTY, of which Williamsport is the seat of justice, is a daughter of historic old Northumberland, formed March 22, 1772. Out of this vast territory, larger than some of the states, Lycoming was carved April 13, 1795. Its area at the time of its formation embraced many thousands of square miles. To-day it has 1213 square miles, and is the second largest county in the State. Of its 776,320 acres more than one-half are rugged and mountainous, but there are many exceedingly fertile and rich valleys noted for their productiveness and beauty. Bald Eagle Mountain, which looms up immediately south of the city, has an average height of 600 feet, with occasional peaks rising to 900 feet. Nestled within these spurs of the Alleghenies are the valleys, surrounded with natural scenery which is exceedingly soft and beautiful, and which never fails to call forth the admiration of those who appreciate the more subdued grandeur of mountain beauty. Springs of soft, pure water break forth in endless number from the mountain sides and no purer water is found anywhere.

The City of Williamsport

HAS A POPULATION of 38,000, an area of 4,546 acres, and the business section—its lowest part—has an elevation of 528 feet above sea level. It has 84 miles of open streets, of which 9 are paved with brick and asphalt, while 40 miles of sewers have been built in accordance with a general plan adopted for the entire city. Industrially it was long known as the "Sawdust City," because of the prodigious amount of lumber cut on its saw mills. Of late years, however, its manufactories have become so widely diversified that the word "Sawdust" no longer conveys the broad scope of its industrial interests, and to it now is fairly and deservedly ascribed the title "The Ideal City for Home or Business." In the manufacture of iron and wood products Williamsport is a recognized leader. Its churches and public schools combine to make a magnificent feature of a beautiful city, while its Fire Department, its water supply, its public markets, its banking institutions, its stores, its public buildings, its suburban drives, its railroads, its light system and its adjacent fertile farming country make it a most desirable place of residence.

Healthy, Wealthy, Up-to-Date

THE thrift, enterprise, progress and development of Williamsport form a conspicuous page in the history of human achievement in the Keystone State for the past century, and this city, to-day, with its broad streets, attractive business houses and charming homes, promptly impresses the visitor with the fact that its citizens are among the most wide-awake people of Pennsylvania. Brains and grit, pure mountain air and pure water, together with enlarged opportunities for profitable business operations, tell the story of the rise of a great city that is not wanting in a single element of the highest modern civilization.

Williamsport:
A City That Does Things

Excellent Sanitary Conditions

THE CITY STREETS—The clean streets of Williamsport, and of which it is justly proud, constitute a prominent feature in the matter of public health, assist materially in forming the perfect city, and has helped it deserve the title given it by every visitor, that of "Beautiful Williamsport."

PURE WATER SUPPLY—The water supply, practically unlimited, another most important adjunct to the health of the city, is obtained from the mountain streams South of the city, is noted for its purity and is beyond the reach of contamination. The reservoirs have a capacity of 34,000,000 gallons, and there are 73 miles of mains. Scientific tests have shown this water to be as pure and wholesome as it is possible to obtain, and it ranks among the best supplied to any city in the United States.

THE CITY'S HEALTH—The development of the Health Department of Williamsport has led to an admirable state of perfection, and the results of a rigidly enforced system are highly gratifying.

The United States Census Bureau—report for 1900—names Williamsport as the most healthful city in the State of Pennsylvania and as the fourth city in point of health in the United States, being excelled only by the phenomenally healthful cities of St. Joseph, Mo., rate 9.1; St. Paul, Minn., rate 9.7; and Minneapolis, Minn., rate 10.8; Williamsport in fourth place with a rate of 12 per 1,000.

RATE FOR 1902—10 PER THOUSAND.

That this record is being maintained is evidenced by the following:

Williamsport's Products Take First Place

IT IS a recognized fact that many Williamsport products take first place whenever brought into competition with those of other places. The best paving bricks in the world are made here; Williamsport band instruments are acknowledged by experts to be superior to those of any other make; Williamsport sewing machines have helped make the city famous and are sent all over the globe; Williamsport boilers and stacks are used largely by the Government, and their enviable reputation maintains in foreign countries as well as our own; the engines of Williamsport manufacture have no superiors; 2,500,000 pairs of rubber and leather boots and shoes are turned out annually; the facilities of the city's breweries are unexcelled by any in the country, and they have an annual capacity of 100,000 barrels; pants are manufactured to the extent of 3,000,000 pairs annually; Williamsport furniture and the products of its wood working concerns are everywhere in demand; over 1,500,000 skirts are made yearly; the output of silk, wire rope and wood working machinery is immense, and the industries of the city are so diversified that almost every line may be found here. Williamsport's natural advantages assist in decreasing expenses and in increasing dividends.

Williamsport a Favorable Location for a Manufacturing Plant

IN view of the large number of industries springing into life and seeking favorable location, this is a statement of vital importance to all who are interested in WILLIAMSPORT'S future as well as to those seeking locations for industrial enterprises.

WILLIAMSPORT is already a recognized manufacturing centre, its factories of a diversified character are prosperous, all running to the fullest capacity, many of them enlarging their plants, and many new industries have been added in the past few years.

Manufacturing industries do not continue to flourish and expand where the conditions are unfavorable.

The location of the City of WILLIAMSPORT is exceedingly favorable, and the advantages it offers for the distribution of its manufactured products are phenomenal.

The character of labor available and the wages to be paid are essential items which the manufacturer must consider in seeking a location. While prevailing wages in WILLIAMSPORT are doubtless about the same as in other cities of its size, it is a fact that the character of the labor to be secured here, as regards intelligence, sobriety and good order, is above the average, and is composed only of representatives of the most desirable nationalities, the kinds that make good citizens.

Williamsport is distinctively a "Home City," and a large proportion of its workingmen own their own homes.

Williamsport is a comparative stranger to strikes and riots, the cost of living is exceedingly reasonable, its educational system ranks second to none, and upon the same wages the workingman lives better and enjoys more than in any other city of equal size.

The streets are well paved, well lighted and clean. Throughout the city shade trees have been preserved and cultivated, so that from a bird's-eye view of Williamsport when the trees are in leaf, the city appears to be set in a park.

Williamsport is beautiful, healthful, energetic, prosperous, wide-awake and up-to-date; it enjoys healthful living, high moral atmosphere, broad school advantages —the best of everything, making

Williamsport the Ideal City for Home or Business

Social Advantages

LIFE IN Williamsport offers attractions so varied as to satisfy the inclinations of any person. The leading clubs of the city are the Ross Club, the Howard Club of Knights Templar, both owning the convenient and commodious houses occupied by them, and the Williamsport Wheel Club, which occupies a palatial residence in the heart of the city. The Clio Club is a large and successful organization composed of ladies prominent in city life.

Nearly every secret society is represented in Williamsport and the local bodies are all thriving and prosperous. The Masonic fraternity occupies its own beautiful Temple at the corner of Fourth and Market streets, adjoining which stands the imposing Howard Memorial Cathedral, a gift of the late William Howard to Williamsport Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons. The Elks own the handsome structure occupied by them on Pine street, below Fourth, and the quarters of the other societies are all commodious, convenient and well adapted for their several purposes.

The theatrical productions with which Williamsport is favored, include the best talent in the country, and it is a matter of comment among the artists of the great centers of the country that Williamsport has more lectures, musicians and theater attractions of a high order of merit than the majority of cities of its size. In these matters Williamsport's standard is high, and is maintained with a determination which proclaims Williamsport an ideal city for a home in this respect.

HOTELS.—Conveniently located, well appointed and ably conducted; compare favorably with those of larger cities. Hundreds of visitors can be well taken care of at the public houses, of which there are over twenty-five, most of which are located in the business centre, convenient to railroad stations and business houses.

West Fourth Street

Religious Advantages

WILLIAMSPORT is a city of churches and it is to be noted that its people as a whole are a religious people. There is no city anywhere where churches and the ministers of religion are more thoroughly respected. There are more than 50 places of worship here, and as compared with other cities, the services of these churches are proportionately as well attended as anywhere, if not better. The pastors of these churches report upwards of 14,000 persons in communicant membership and about 10,000 scholars in the Sunday schools. Religion may fairly be said to flourish in Williamsport and that fact is surely not to be overlooked when people are seeking homes or employment in a place where they want the entire nature of man to be looked after.

The city has had in the past and still has among its pastors men of eminent ability in their profession—men of sound scholarship and ripe learning, men of eloquence and power, and men of administrative gifts whose success would be assured in any walk of life.

There are no less than 125 religious societies connected with the churches whose purpose is either philanthropic, educational, missionary or devotional. New and handsome churches have superseded old buildings. Parish buildings or chapels have been added to churches already erected. Parsonages and parochial schools are put up and all is a splendid record of advancing prosperity. The religious interests of Williamsport share in the prosperity of the city and must not be overlooked when the eye is fixed upon the superior advantages of Williamsport, the Ideal City for Home or Business.

What Williamsport Did in One Hour

IN ONE hour, January 18, 1902, the citizens of Williamsport raised $140,000 and secured the mammoth John N. Stearns & Sons' proposed silk dyeing establishment which will ultimately employ 800 men. This large sum was raised in subscriptions ranging from $100 to $20,000 at one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings of citizens ever held in the city. Once the subscription ball was started rolling it did not stop till the required amount had fully been subscribed, with others willing to put down their names for various amounts. The achievement was received with long and tremendous applause, the feeling being general that the citizens of Williamsport had done something that would stand to the everlasting credit and advantage of the City.

The meeting of citizens was called by the Executive committee of the Board of Trade, which had had for some time under advisement, a proposition of the firm of John N. Stearns & Sons to locate in this City their proposed dye works for dyeing all the silk goods produced in their own mills and by mills owned by other firms. The proposition had been investigated from every standpoint, by experts employed for the purpose, and by the best business men of the City, and the proposed works had been found a very desirable investment. The only condition attached to Williamsport's acquisition of the enterprise was that its citizens take $140,000 first mortgage bonds of a proposed company, this amount representing the cost of the site and the buildings of the plant. To offset these bonds Messrs. Stearns & Sons agreed to supply $200,000 capital and to move their dye works from Petersburg, Va., and add them to their proposed plant in this city. This plant is now in successful operation.

It's Williamsport's Way

THE way in which Williamsport gets to work and does things when there is an opportunity to add a new enterprise to its already varied industries is something of a surprise to other cities in the state of similar size. The other night, as already told in the news dispatches, a meeting of citizens provided for putting up $140,000 to secure the location in Williamsport of an establishment which will employ 250 hands. Newspapers in other cities are declaring that if Williamsport can do this other places can. There is truth in this, of course. The difficulty is, however, that not many other places have gone about the business in the same way that Williamsport has. Some time ago that city, through its Board of Trade, created a guaranty fund of $215,000—which is independent of the amount subscribed the other night—and also a committee of trustworthy business men which examines carefully every proposition presented. Upon the report of this committee the people who have money to invest do not hesitate to act, and some of the investments are likely to prove quite profitable. The work of the Williamsport people therefore is not a spasm; it is continuous.—Philadelphia Press.

Banking Institutions

WILLIAMSPORT has a solid financial status. A commercial city is always in a great degree dependent upon its banking facilities, and any one at all observant will be impressed with the extent of the business of this city, by noticing the amount of capital possessed and the prosperity of the banking institutions; for the advance of business is probably more accurately demonstrated by the growth of the banking interest than by any other standard that can be followed with equal precision.

The city is well and abundantly supplied with banking facilities, the institutions being as follows:

Cochran, Payne & McCormick, bankers.
First National Bank.
Lycoming National Bank.
Savings Institution of the City of Williamsport.
Susquehanna Trust and Safe Deposit Company.
West Branch National Bank.

High Moral Atmosphere

PLACES OF WORSHIP.—Williamsport possesses 55 churches, all of them substantial and many of them of beautiful architectural design. In any of them visitors to the city will find a cordial welcome and a pleasant place to worship.

SUMMER RESORT.—Eagles Mere, 40 miles from Williamsport, is a summer resort, the popularity of which is not confined to residents of Pennsylvania. In the summer months a cooler, more beautiful and health-giving spot cannot be found than that on the shores of the lovely lake, a wonderful work of nature, set as it is in the midst of a primeval forest, at an elevation of 2,200 feet above sea level. The lake is three miles in circumference, depth unknown, quickly and easily reached by Philadelphia and Reading Railway and Williamsport and North Branch Railroad.

THE CONVENTION CITY.—The generous hospitality of the citizens of Williamsport, and the universal endeavor to make visiting strangers feel at home, has made it possible, and assisted Williamsport to win and justly deserve, the title "Convention City;" and in no city are visitors more warmly welcomed, nor more courteously made to feel that they possess the freedom of the city than in "Beautiful Williamsport."

THE PARKS

BRANDON PARK.—A beautifully situated tract of 44 acres, presented to the city by A. Boyd Cummings, February 21, 1889, and was so named by the donor to perpetuate the memory of his sister. The city makes appropriations annually for its improvement, and the Commissioners in charge serve for life, vacancies being filled by appointment of the Mayor, by and with the consent of Select Council upon the nomination only of the surviving members of the Commission. Charming drives and lovely shaded walks have been laid out and the general features of the park beautified in tasteful manner. Located but five squares from the center of the city.

VALLAMONT PARK—Natural woods, lying North of and adjacent to city lines. Sustained by private means and open to the public. Within easy walking distance and reached by Vallamont electric cars. Theatrical performances in pavilion during entire summer. The Vallamont drives on the hills, which are a part of this property, are the finest in the State, together with the Grampian Drives, which are on the hills East of and near the Vallamont property, maintained also by private means. The views obtained from these elevations, reached by grades curving up the hillsides, easy for pedestrian, bicyclist or driver, are as beautiful, awe-inspiring and satisfying as any to be found, no matter where, nor how celebrated. These mountain drives of Williamsport are famous for their magnificent panoramic views extending 40 miles along the West Branch Valley.

STARR ISLAND PARK.—A beautiful park of natural woods on Loyalsock Creek, East of city. Music evenings during summer. Electric car line direct.

SYLVAN DELL PARK.—On the river, East of city, reached by steamboats and Pennsylvania Railroad. Music on grounds and boats evenings during summer.

Railroad Facilities

WILLIAMSPORT'S advantages for the distribution of its products are phenomenal and is one of the causes which will make it one of the greatest manufacturing centers in the State of Pennsylvania.

It has three great trunk lines:

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

THE PHILADELPHIA AND READING RAILWAY.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL AND HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD.

Freight schedules under ordinary conditions call for deliveries the following morning at Philadelphia, Baltimore, Rochester, Wilkes-Barre, etc. For a second morning delivery at New York city, Pittsburg and Erie. For a third morning delivery at Cleveland, Columbus, etc., and for a fourth morning delivery at Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

In the matter of car supply Williamsport probably suffers less distress than any other city in the country, and this because of its exceptional location, advantage being taken of the return of empty cars from the North to the South and East and similar movements from the East and South to North.

As regards its great advantages as a railroad center Williamsport points with pride to the fact that it occupies the unique position of being the only city other than New York that is reached by these three great railway systems of the United States.

The Lumber Trade

THE MANUFACTURE of lumber has been, during the commercial existence of Williamsport, one of its greatest industries and has added as much as any other to its prestige as a distributing point. Its advantageous position on the West Branch of the Susquehanna River, together with its superior railroad facilities for the distribution of the manufactured product has made it the logical point for the location of this industry. A careful estimate puts the amount of lumber sawed in Williamsport during the 1901 season at 125,000,000 feet; 1902 season, 85,000,000 feet. The manufacture of lumber has naturally made Williamsport the head centre of all woodworking industries and has drawn to this city the most skilled workmen in that line of business, while the fact that they are "made in Williamsport" stamps the products of Williamsport's planing mills and furniture factories as being of superior make and grade; their manufacture in this city being accepted by the trade as conclusive evidence of qualities which put them in the same class and equal to silver products marked "Sterling."

Manufacturing Interests

IN THE field of manufacturing and industrial pursuits Williamsport's position is becoming more prominent each year. Its location in the midst of a territory in which, within a radius of 170 miles, are the great Pennsylvania Coal, Iron and Lumber regions, and which constitutes the greatest manufacturing district of the world, makes it an ideal site for the production and distribution of manufactured products. Situated as it is and yet not immediately in a mining district, gives to Williamsport the advantage of speedy delivery of coal and iron at such favorable freight rates as must appeal to the manufacturer and be a convincing argument that the manufacturer to be successful must secure just such advantages.

Williamsport's manufactures include wood-working machinery, furniture, wire rope, nails, band instruments, boilers, radiators, stacks, tanks, power transmission machinery, engines, fire, building and paving brick, trusses, umbrellas, sewing machines, mirrors, mirror and picture frames, bicycles, beer, cigars, silk, braids, flour, gas and gasoline engines, suspenders, suspender trimmings, hosiery, wooden conduit pipe, woolen goods, fire escapes, heaters, valves, pumps, blank books, lithographic work, brooms, brushes, paints, carriages, wagons, cement boxes, matches, leather, belting, flint and emery paper, clothing, saws, lumber, rubber and leather boots and shoes, doors, sash, moulding, etc.

The output of manufactured articles is increasing at a most satisfactory rate. The freight receipts of the different railroads will amount to fully two million dollars for the year 1902. The fact that 15 iron foundries are in active and successful operation is sufficient proof that Williamsport offers great inducements and advantages to that great industry.

Educational Advantages

WILLIAMSPORT'S public school system includes a corps of about 120 well-trained teachers, a wide-awake and progressive superintendent and 14 modern and well-kept buildings. Its well devised curriculum and the high standard of the text books used emphasize its progressive educational spirit. For the young artisan and the boys and girls who are employed during the day, a night school has been opened to such as wish to receive the benefits of a common school education. With a system of education therefore, embracing the moral and physical as well as the intellectual development of the young, with its school property valued at nearly a half million dollars, the educational facilities of Williamsport present an attractive feature to the stranger seeking a home, insuring to his children a thorough practical course of education and a proper preparatory training for the college or university.

The city possesses also excellent private institutions of learning, which are attended by pupils from all sections. Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, established 1848, an educational institution conducted under the auspices of the M. E. church, occupies substantial and commodious buildings situated on a commanding location. Accommodations in buildings for 150 students, male and female. Courses in classics, science, music, art, etc.; degrees conferred. The school is an eminently successful one and Williamsport loyally refers to it as a model institution. Pott's Shorthand College and the Williamsport Commercial College are pre-eminent in their lines of instruction, and are noted for their thoroughness and capacity, attracting students from all parts of the State.

STREET RAILWAYS.—The street railway systems are practically perfect in the facilities they afford, not only for getting about within the city proper, but for reaching suburban points as well. The city system connects at the eastern limits of the city with a line running to Montoursville. Cars run from Market Square to South Williamsport, and a charter has been granted a corporation which will shortly begin the construction of a line extending from the western limits of the city to Lock Haven, 28 miles distant, taking in Oak Grove, 16 miles distant, where the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad are erecting shops which will employ 5,000 men, Jersey Shore and intermediate points.

HEAT AND LIGHT.—Central steam plants for heating, with supply pipes on all principal streets. Two electric illuminating and power companies. Gas company with holder of 500,000 cubic feet capacity and 48 miles of mains. The city streets are illuminated by 2,000-candle power arc lights and by gas.

TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES.—Facilities in this line are provided for the business community by the Western Union Telegraph Co., Postal Telegraph Co., Philadelphia, Reading and Pottsville Telegraph Co., Pennsylvania Telephone Co. and North and West Branch Telephone Co. The service is reliable and efficient and all the equipment is thoroughly up-to-date.

FIRE AND POLICE DEPARTMENTS.—Paid Fire Department, equipped with modern and latest improved apparatus. Department houses, 6; fire hydrants, 248; steam engines, 5; chemical, 2; Hayes ladder truck, 1; hose carriages, 6; firemen, 54. Police—Chief, Captain, Sergeant, 17 patrolmen. Both departments in a high state of efficiency.

Residential Advantages

THE advantages of residence in Williamsport include many things which attract the attention and compel the admiration of every visitor, and which serve as a powerful magnet to hold the loyalty of all who reside here. Among them are the climatic advantages, the bracing air, the elevation, the character of the country affording easy drainage, the fine sanitary system which supplements natural advantages, police and fire departments of unusual efficiency, pure mountain water, superior educational advantages, strong fraternal, religious and social organizations, public libraries, a magnificent theatre at which the best artists regularly appear, enterprising daily newspapers and a phenomenally successful illustrated weekly, rapid transit, affording easy and quick access to the business centre, the churches and theatre from all parts of the city and suburbs, a community of high-class merchants whose enterprise affords extraordinary facilities for shopping, and unsurpassed markets at which the best of vegetables, meats, fish and game are regularly supplied at reasonable prices.

With all these advantages is the distinctive spirit of the people, an orderly, home-owning, hospitable people, inspired with an incomparable public spirit, which balks at no enterprise and welcomes every honest man, rich or poor, who comes to add his efforts to the energetic life of
